DiscussIT Topic 6: Where is our country headed?

Discuss IT Topic: Over the last week, our country has had growing concerns on immigration bans, border safety, and executive orders that remind us of issues that have been plaguing our country for years. Now that Trump has been elected President, there has been people threatening to blow up the White House, human right protests, and a plethora of other sensitive subject matters that are very compelling to individual groups of people. Why have these issues come up now as we head into a time in which it seems no one is going to be happy with the outcomes? Will this create a split in this country and place citizens against one another when it comes to their views? In your opinion, what other topics are at the forefront of concern? Explain...

Response: Please make sure all grammar, spelling, indentation, and punctuation is correct.

I believe that these peaceful protests are considered a joke. Many individuals that participate in the protests have no clue on what they are supporting. People should just accept the outcome and just ignore the president's personal ideals and focus on the changes that he is going to make on our country. People should be blessed that they can have their views on certain topics while others are forced to stay quiet and accept the policies that are given to them. I believe that these simple protests will not split this country. Just because many individuals that believe in his ideals doesn't mean it will cause chaos and spilt the country. People should give President Trump a chance. He has done so much for our country already and many more positive things will continue to happen.
